

About Me

Hello, I am Eric. I am a first-year master's student in the Department of Electronic Engineering at the National Taiwan University of Science and Technology. I have an optimistic personality, am proactive in learning new things, and am willing to take on challenges.

I have served as the overall coordinator for freshman orientation camp activities and have received a scroll award once during my time at the university.

I am eagerly seeking an internship opportunity to further expand my practical experience and broaden my understanding.
